CORONAVIRUS EMERGENCY: UNIPOL DONATES 1 MILLION FOR BERGAMO

The Insurance Group supports Bergamo with Cesvi. A portable CT scanner purchased for the new field hospital organised by the Italian Alpine troops to tackle the Covid-19 emergency. Unipol has committed a total of €20m to help the most severely affected areas of our country.

Bergamo, 30 March 2020

Unipol has stepped up to help the Bergamo community, one of the hardest hit by the Covid-19 emergency, supporting the actions taken by the humanitarian organisation Cesvi. The Insurance Company, one of the leading insurance groups in Europe and the Italian leader in the Non-Life business, has donated one million euros for the purchase of a portable CT scanner, a machine of fundamental importance at this stage of the emergency, for the field hospital organised by the Alpine troops in Bergamo. This healthcare structure, established to tackle the Covid-19 emergency and back up the work of the city hospitals, is the biggest field hospital in Europe, capable of accommodating about 200 patients in 6000 square metres in the Bergamo Fair Pavilion B.

Unipol, which allocated €20m to support the most severely affected areas in Italy, has already taken action to deal with the Coronavirus emergency in agreement with the Lombardy Region, donating €6m to be used as follows:

- to create a new emergency facility in the Fiera Milano City pavilions, a 400-bed hospital devoted to intensive care and semi-intensive care for patients with the Covid-19 virus;
- for the extraordinary purchase of ventilators and consumables such as masks, protective suits, disinfectants and instruments for the healthcare facilities in order to treat patients as best as possible and limit the risk of contagion.

Cesvi has made its thirty years' experience in tackling emergencies available since the emergency began, immediately launching a drive to gather funds to support the Papa Giovanni XXIII Hospital and provide social assistance in the Bergamo and Milan territories to help the most vulnerable over-65 group. Some of the funds collected have been used to provide personal protective equipment to hospital operators and medical equipment to treat patients with Covid-19. In association with the Bergamo and Milan public institutions, and in partnership with the territorial associations, Cesvi has also been providing backup assistance for the elderly in their homes and guaranteeing support to fragile or isolated households or those experiencing emergencies with actions linked to primary needs (delivery of meals, shopping, distribution of masks and medicines to homes) and to prevent situations of exclusion or isolation.

In order to join the display of solidarity promoted by Cesvi and make a contribution, online donations can be made on the Cesvi website or by making a bank transfer to current account number IT92R031111299000000000095 or taking part in a dedicated crowdfunding campaign on Go Fund me: <https://www.gofundme.com/f/emergenza-covid-cesvi-per-bergamo>. The toll-free number 800 036 036 is also available to make telephone donations.
